Regina Public Library branches to re-open May 31

Regina Public Library will re-open library branches starting Monday, May 31.

Central Library, Albert, George Bothwell, Prince of Wales, Regent Place, Sherwood Village, and Sunrise Branches will re-open on May 31. Glen Elm and Connaught Branches will open on Tuesday, June 1.

"We're excited to re-open and look forward to seeing our customers again," said Jeff Barber, Library Director and CEO.

Capacity in branches will be capped relative to branch size to a max of 30 customers at the largest branches. Real-time capacity information will be available on the Locations and Hours page of RPL's website. Branch hours are listed below.

Branches will maintain safety protocols including mandatory masking, hand sanitizing stations, plexiglass barriers, revised floor plans, and one-way traffic paths.

Curbside pickup will continue at all branches, in addition to inside browsing and borrowing of materials, access to computer stations, the Digital Media Studio at Central Library, art rental and return, musical instruments lending, Book Club in a Bag, and modified literacy services.

Dunlop Art Gallery will feature two new exhibitions: My Grandfather's Pictures by local artist John Peet at the Sherwood Village gallery, and Logan MacDonald's kawingjemeesh/shake hands at the Central Library gallery.

Additional services will be added as it becomes safe for their return.
