RPL's Foodie Film Festival serves up a feast for the eyes

Feast Your Eyes: Foodie Film Festival is back with another generous helping of films and food at the RPL Film Theatre Sept 8–10. Presenting a full course of screenings, performances, discussions, dinners, and workshops, Feast Your Eyes will inspire palates and minds through a delicious serving of local culinary creations paired with feature films, along with a free program of short films by local and regional filmmakers.

This year, RPL Film Theatre collaborates with Chef Jenni Lessard and Over the Hill Orchard, who will develop the menu, paired to the selected films.

"We're really excited to see what the chefs cook up in response to this year's films," Tomas Jonsson, Curator of Performance and Moving Image, RPL Film Theatre, said. "The menu will perfectly complement each night's viewing experience."

The festival also features sumptuous classic films such as Spirited Away; the wild cult masterpiece, Killer Tomatoes Eat France (AKA Attack of the Killer Tomatoes 3); and free matinees including the family favorite Ratatouille.

Other festival highlights include a free reception with light snacks after the September 10 screenings of works by filmmaker Janine Windolph. Windolph's films explore culture, healing, and familial relationships to food and territory. A free Past Sculptures workshop in Victoria Park offers all ages a chance to play with their food on September 9.
