

For immediate release: October 30, 2023

Library offers free financial information all month

Free financial information for all Reginans will be available through the month of November at the Regina Public Library (RPL) Financial Literacy Month speaker series.

Local professionals will give eight presentations on a wide variety of practical topics that can help all Canadians manage their money wisely, save for the future, and understand their financial rights. Session topics include taxes, divorce, mortgages, wills, RRSPs, investing, money for new moms, and the psychology of spending.

“Financial literacy means understanding how to work with the reality of your money, which is something every family and individual can benefit from,” said Tim Xie, Business Service Specialist, Regina Public Library. “The library supports our community with free access to this important, empowering information.”

RPL’s Financial Literacy Month programs, offered through Zoom, include:

Wed, Nov 1: Effective Tax Strategies

Thurs, Nov 2: Introduction to Value Investing Strategy

Wed, Nov 8: Money for New Moms

Thurs, Nov 9: Understanding the Financial Impact of Divorce for Women

Wed, Nov 15: Mortgage 101 for First-time Home Buyers

Thurs, Nov 16:

Canada Pension Plan and Old Age Security - And In-Depth Review
RRSP Strategies Based on Your Career Stage

Thurs, Nov 23: What is a Will and Why Do I Need One?

Thurs, Nov 30: Mind Your Money - The Psychology of Spending

RPL also offers free personal finance tools year-round. One-on-one drop-in clinics are available for tax assistance, resume coaching, and family law, and hundreds of online courses and digital resources are discoverable through the library website 24/7.

For more information on Financial Literacy Month programs and additional resources, visit reginalibrary.ca/personal-finance.

Media Release

Katie Murphy-Balkwill
Marketing and Communications Consultant
kbalkwill@reginalibrary.ca
306.777.6114